Worked at anatomy with Realdo Colombo. Sketched at Oxford for "Study of Anatomy," reproduced p 44 44 personal habits - His father writes p 80 "And see that you never wash; have yourself rolled down, but never wash." Went to bed with his clothes on even to the last coat which he left on for such a length of time that when he drew them off he

B

He makes no mention of B's idée fixe or the delirious touches, described in Lavengro. On p. 96. describing the period about 1824-25 he says "I was troubled with his ever recurring fits of despairing or morbid melancholia which at last assumed the alarming symptoms of a mania.
He was constantly threatening suicide". In his autobiography (Lavengro) vague accounts called "The Fear" in 1818-19 & about the date of his encounter with the Flying Dutchmen later in life he called them "The Horror". an attack at Hamburg 1833 St Petersburg

The mood in which "The whole earth is scarcely worth a tear" as Thackeray says:

at St Petersburg 5. 1. 34 he writes his mother
"I have been very ill with the palsy ----- ---- I went mad & when the palsy subsided I was seized with the Horrors which never left me day or night for a week. I believe I should have died had I not been advised to drive them away <sup>by</sup> ~~out~~ first wife. I took a bottle a day & after the first day they went away. I find they are caused by weakness only"

In 1844 writes to Ford about his condition as being "in the shadow". To his wife in same year left to myself a gloom comes upon me which I cannot describe"

The effect of music on the attacks, described in Berkeley's reminiscences. (1899. Vol II) "Toms was sitting by the fire shivering as with the ague & looking helplessly round" His wife played the harmonium a brighten up saying "your

B. probably a sexual pervert - in no other way can be explained his relations with Pauli - probably a passive one and accidental as he evidently had active relations with women. (V. v. 8. II. about Miss Somas who was his mistress for 20 years - and there were others) His treatment of Miss Savage, was brutal as he himself felt. Vol. II p. 349. The sonnets on her are the worst ever written about a woman, and it seems an outrage on the memory of one who was his faithful friend & published them - and it was an sh. ~~shamefully~~ by bad taste on the part of her friends. I am sure B. often would have spared her. At the same time they express as has never before done before the physical repulsion aroused by some women - B. tries to express his remorse in those sonnets.

She was so kind, wrote too persistently, Wrote morning letters to me day by day;
The more she wrote, the more unmoved was I,
The more she gave the less could I repay.
Therefore I grieve not that I was not loved But that, being loved, I could not love again.
I liked; but liked & love are far removed;
And though I tried to love I lived in vain; For she was plain & lame and fat & short, Foolish & over-kind. Hence it repels That, though I loved her in a certain sort, Yet did I love too surely but not well.
Ah! had she been more beauteous and kind She might have found me of another mind.

at my own desk,
for money and now though twenty years are come & gone, That little lame lady's face is with me still;

Never a day but what, on every shore She dwells with me as dwelt she ever will.
She said she wished I knew not wrong from right, It was not that: I knew & could have chosen wrong, if I would, but in my chilled veins It said that if a woman woos no man Should leave her till she have rewarded. & here A man will yield for pity of he can,
But if the flesh rebels what can he do?
I could not, hence I grieve my whole life long The wrong I did in that I did no wrong.
He wrote also "Death bound me to her when he set me free" It is an extraordinary episode, in some ways unique in literature.

B. views on immorality are given in the famous sonnet published in Althaea, Jan.

THE THREE WHO ANSWER PRAYER.

Hypnos, Oneiros, Thanatos, The Lords who slay Despair, Alone of Gods ye succour us
The Three who answer Prayer.

Out of the sleep of nothingness Dream led, we wake to pain Until the hands of Thanatos Lay us to rest again.

Eros has fled in mockery, Slaying whom he beguiled, The Golden Aphrodite's shrine Lies open and defiled.

The trance girt Sleep that granteth us The Dream God's downy plume, The still, deep eyes of Thanatos Accord Life's utmost boon.

Lo, we will turn and comfort us With These, that hush Despair, Alone of Gods they succour us
The Three who answer Prayer.

Chauvin. In La cocarde tricolore, Episode de la Guerre d'Algérie par MM Théodore et Hippolyte Cogniard. Representé pour la première fois à Paris le 19 juillet 1831.

La cocarde, vieux soldat, Chauvin, jeune com-script. Scène en Algiers.

The old soldier recognises Chauvin & a friend and then speaks out in praise of the French spirit. "Ils se étaient mis cinq contre deux, c'est pas grave."

"C'est pas français". The old soldier had no rank but all the army loved him and called him la cocarde. In the Egyptian campaign "le petit" had spoken to him after a battle and asked if he had lost his cocarde had given him his & then he had carried it ever since next to his heart. "Elle restera là sur ce cœur qui battre toujours au nom de Napoléon". At the investigation a sergeant he was arrested for fomenting discord. & just as the tribunal was called the arabs made an attack. La cocarde was captured & freed his son an old prisoner. The people. The arabs are defeated & la cocarde is subsequently tried and condemned to death. Chauvin plays a minor part there but before his execution he pronounces but no where so far as I can see, are sentiments which we would call chauvinistic but in truth as the sentence of death was about to be carried out and alarm is heard & when cocarde is roused up with the words & animus that liberty has returned, a patriotic song follows & at the end la cocarde sings Tous les nations étrangères contre nous en vain s'irritent; Avant de franchir nos frontières, Toutous les corps & ell's marcheront

He was a teacher of Roger Bacon

In his Compendium Scientiarum division 8 is "The art of medicine"

An early student of Greek & Latin. John of Bassay, noble to others a scholar in search of Greek Mss. and made translations, begun in 1241 (1242) with the aid of Melchor & others. Sent for persons (Greeks) to aid in the revival of study of Greek.

His life synchronised with the influx of the Latin version of the Arabic commentaries & translators of Aristotle, and also with the facilities offered by the Crusades for the acquisition of Greek Mss. He stood forth as the first & in some respects as the greatest of the English scholars of the 13th century.

He was the teacher of Roger Bacon, the great Franciscan Scholar

One of his letters - example. - to Adam Marsh
"I know that the perils you stated station are neither few nor inconsiderable & I know its pitfall, how hard it is to repress pride, how rare is the sense of one's own weakness, how easy it is to feel contempt for others, how difficult to adapt oneself to the needs of the weaker brother: it is the shadow of power, and the reality of servitude."

I know also from experience, and still suffer from the knowledge, how many thorns there are in riches, how many occasions they afford for acting wrongly, how often they are misused, how bad it is that they impoverish instead of enriching their possessors, and how those same possessors, who are really themselves owned by the wealth, yet they are the reputed owners, find their intellects blinded and rendered torpid and dormant" wrote in his Pastoral 1236 against usury

Strong drink "deprives a man often made in the image of God of his use of his reason, brings on the most dearest, shortens his life, is a stepping stone to apostasy and engenders other innumerable evils". He used it then to put an end to the "Scotales" & drinking bouts which seem to have been like the German Corps' bouts - vindicates the wisdom of Opportunism when no question of principle is at stake with the words of St. Augustine "Cum mane surgit qui nocte quiescebat, rite consilium non mutavit". A man who rises up in the morning after resting during the night cannot be said to have been inconsistent

His noble "sermon" before Innocent IV at Lyons May 13. 1250) and the college of Cardinals - one of the strongest denunciation of ecclesiastical abuses ever penned.

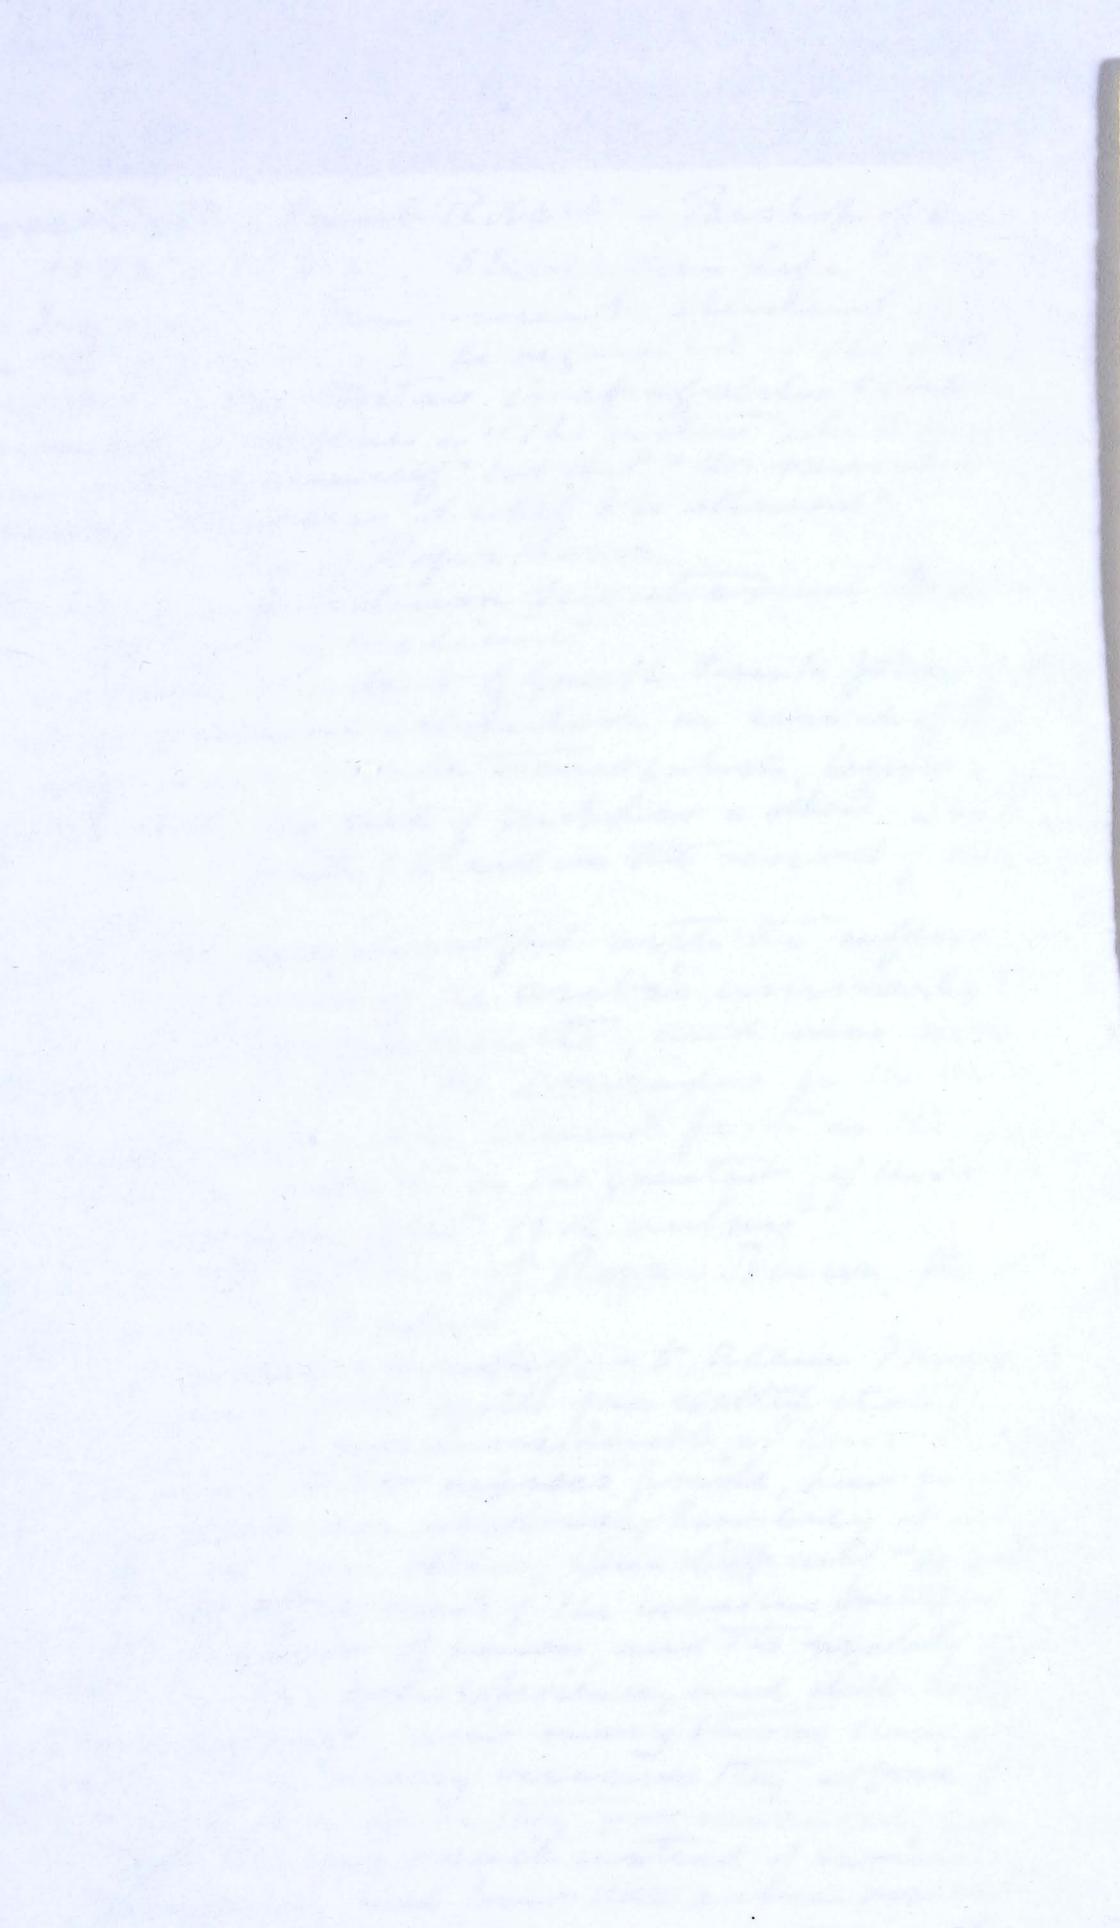

"The word of action is stronger than the word of speech"

"The renewal of religion, the revival of learning & the renewal of the national spirit owed to him in no small degree their strength, their enthusiasm and their support Three things he once said to a Dominican are necessary for temporal salvation - food sleep & good humour" desc. on the cure of Wounds by Sympathy 1651 de hysterica passione.

(1) History of generation, & from the several opinions of divers authors, especially that of Sir Kenelme Digby in his Discourse of Bodies & Land. 1651

Poor - Some one called J. Cork, (writing is old) has written comment - thro it - "mere gibberage" hypothesis Rant "Doubtedly he was a credulous old chap.
At p 53 he gives the old story of the artificial generation of plants - in which they are recalled to life and start up stalk and leaf, which but now was dust or leuor. One experiment "curiously made tho' was made by a learned grave Physician nearly related to me" Having in the evening exposed a a decoction for a distill (made of violet leaves, strawberry leaves, Mallows & the like) to the cold of the night. The next morning he found it covered with a slender crust of ice, which gave him leave thro. It beheld in the water the leaves in their perfect shapes of all those plants which the decoction was made, both in fashion and color, which remained in that posture till the ice was broken, which was no sooner done than but all their pretious plants presently vanished, nothing remaining but the clear leuor of the decoction"

Says of Carries, an obser. whom was quoted by Sir K. Digby "I conjecture his curious eye seldom takes anything upon trust, or slightly passes by what is observable"

(2) I Cork's comment at the end is correct. "not seualable to such a man to write on, of Hightmore's character"

(2) The Discourse of the cure of Wounds by Sympathy or without any real application of medicines to the part affected, but especially by that Powder known by the name of Sir Gilbert Talbot's Powder by Nath.
Hightmore. Dr. of Physick. This is a appendix to the preceding.

The first gives a disc. on almes & believes the cure to be wrought by "atmocall energy wrought at a distance". Speaks of the "hypochlorus almes" of that pesidential disease among beasts - called "Murrain" The powder is "a Zaphyrian salt - calcined by a celestial fire operating in the and cancer into a human complexion". He speaks also of Master Howells "cruentated gaster" in Sir K. Digby's celebrated cure.

The Heræon lies somewhat nearer to Mycenæ than to Argos, and was once connected with the city of Agamemnon by a "sacred way." At present it is best approached from Argos, and the distance from that town—some six or seven miles—has an interest of its own for the classical scholar, who can hardly fail to remember the touching story related by Croesus, as Herodotus tells us, to Cyrus when on the point of being burnt on the pyre by his triumphant conqueror. At Argos lived Kydippe, the priestess of Hera, who, on the day of the goddess's festival, was bound to be present at the temple in order to conduct the sacred rites. The throng of worshippers had already assembled, and the hour for the sacrifice approached; but the oxen, which were to draw the chariot of the priestess to the temple, could not be found in the fields. Then Kleobis and Biton, her two athletic sons, attached themselves to the yoke, and drew their mother to the sanctuary. As they approached the multitude wondered and congratulated the priestess on the strength, the beauty, and the devotion of her sons; and the proud and happy mother prayed the goddess to grant them the best of all the blessings that the gods bestow on men. The youths joined in the sacrifice and feasted, and laid down to rest in the temple—never to rise again, for the goddess had heard their mother's prayer, and had bestowed on them the best of all blessings—that is, death.

important duty of every Korean housewife. In Korea, as in China, ancestor worship is the real religion. Confucianism is the avowed religion of the country ; but, like the Chinese, the Koreans hold dogmatic religions in considerable, good-natured contempt.

Fortune-tellers and astrologers are as many and as prosperous in Korea as in China. Like the Japanese, the Koreans have found a special and profitable vocation for their blind. In Japan the needy blind invariably practice shampooing. In Korea the blind exorcise devils and in analogous ways make themselves generally useful. Their dealings with the evil spirits are summary and thorough. The gifted blind man frightens the devil to death by means of diabolical noises, or catches the devil in a bottle and carries it in triumph to a place of safety where devils cease from troubling and afflicted Koreans are at rest.

The laws of Korea are explicit concerning high treason. They smite it hip and thigh. They exterminate it root and branch. If a Korean is found guilty of high treason, he dies, and his entire family dies with him. In this custom the Koreans are again Chinese and not altogether un-Japanese. No Korean dare utter his King's name. When the King dies he is given a name (a kind of name, an apology for a name) by which his august personality may be distinguished amid the dense masses of history. But his real name, the name he bears in life, is never spoken save in the secrecy of the palace harem. And Tutors Club. In Oct. 1905 a few months after coming to Oxford I was asked to join this club which was started about 1820. The first meeting was at Bradham and Wells the secretary before dinner announced to the members that he had an interesting communication to make. He had received that morning from Dr Bright the master of Newn. a note stating that in cleaning out the library before leaving Newn College he had come upon a N.Y. book belonging to the Club which had been mislaid by Bradley his predecessor in the Mastership & thus Wells said was the long lost book in which all the members of the Club had entered their names. It had been lost, much to & their grief for 25 years. The first name in the book was such man had entered a sort of biography. Among the notable men were both the Arnolds, Garrett, Tait and others. Goldsmith, Mull, Rait & Robinson Ellis were the only men whose names were in the book among existing members. When I over the men were. Parker, Ellis, Goudy, Decay, Owen Phelps, Anson

In the winter of 1905-06 we had six dinners Nov 6. 06 1st dinner of club at Robinson Ellis at Trinity - delightful evening. Sat next Decay who was full of stories. Told one of Brassey, a student had come to him with an essay on some aspect of truth. W. said ab. at our time of life we find so many who think truth is on their side but precious few who are "on the side of truth."

March 1st 1809 went to the Sant' Agostino<sup>Rome</sup>, and saw the 'Madonna del Porto' the famous Madonna which helps the pregnant women. It is a large gaudily bedecked figure - like a fashionably dressed Queen with a crown on her head & an infant in her arms. The figure & the whole wall of the end of the choir & are covered with votive offerings - pictures dealing with circumstances in which the Madonna had been helpful - a man falling off a broken ladder who had come to pray to her & a bell case, was not bent - shapes - pictures of raised by hand & half dead girls, models of eyes, hands feet, chiefly in metal - of gaudy gilt or silvered - crucifixes on the ends of the stand, braces, crocket brackets &c. not to claim it in the greatest profusion. Two pregnant women were praying before her a several men & boys. The toes of the left foot are worn away by the kisses of the faithful and are now coated with silver.

In the same church over the high alter is the picture painted by Guido & in a Chapel to the left is the tomb of St Monica.
